Dear Honey Rose: —

Am sitting out near the river on my lunch hour. Gosh! but it sure did get hot, didn't it? Were you caught in the rain this morning? It's both sunny + hot here, but my head aches frightfully perhaps the air might help me.

Was afraid you'd forgotten about the money since you left in such a hurry. But mom told me you were there. How was the breakfast at the barracks? Am sure you weren't late. How do you feel? Pop made breakfast for me this morning.

Rec'd a letter from Sally asking why I don't write. He writes very little besides this – his letter is very short. Asks how you are feeling and how everything is at home. Seems as though he has written home so probably they know my news about his money.

Before coming down here, I stopped in the office to see if there was any mail for me. Am looking for the admission card to the bank as I am quite anxious to go swimming to-morrow. If however I do not get the card, I am about decided to take my suit along and go down to the beach. I wish I knew of some one who could go with me, so I wouldn't be so lonesome, but I am not going to let that bother me any more. I'll simply go alone and enjoy myself as much as I can. Perhaps I'll meet some one there. Anyhow, if not I'll keep my self amused with a book. If the weather is not too warm and if I am feeling well enough, I'll drive to-morrow and Wednesday if Rose is able to, I'll go down to see Elvira.

Have just come back from luncheon. It was peach! Hoarded upon enjoy yours? Head still aches, and I feel miserable. Blue and melancholy and just feel as though I could cry for nothing at all. Head tired and dragy. Am positive what I need is a little change, so expect I'll feel alright in a day or two
